Dr. A. Khademhosseini (Harvard Medical School) was awarded "ALA Innovation Award".

The ALA Innovation Award recognizes seminal research and development in laboratory automation presented in podium presentations at the annual LabAutomation conference. To be granted the Innovation Award, the presented work must be exceedingly innovative contributing to the exploration of automation technologies in the laboratory. In addition, it must exhibit independence of thought, clarity of vision, extraordinary technical originality, and unique integration and automation strategies.

For more information: Click here.